

Marek Wojtaszek is assistant professor at the Faculty of International and Political Studies at the University of Lodz, Poland, affiliated with the Department of American and Media Studies, and the Women's Studies Center. His main areas of research include: visual and algorithmic cultures and aesthetics and environmental media, Gilles Deleuze's philosophy, and the relationship between body and space. He graduated from American Studies at the University of Lodz, Poland, Études européennes at the Jean Moulin Université in Lyon, France, and completed a postgraduate program in cultural and media studies at Utrecht University, the Netherlands. Marek holds a Ph.D. in the Humanities (literary studies). He teaches media and cultural studies as well as in an international didactic program Joint European Master's Degree in Women's and Gender Studies (GEMMA). He is a beneficiary of European Commission (University of Buenos Aires, Argentina), Polish Science Foundation (University of Tel Aviv, Israel), and Polish-American Fulbright Commission (University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign). Marek has English publications in the fields of aesthetics, critical theory, gender, media studies, psychoanalysis and visual culture. His recent publications include: "Dreaming-machine: Diurnal Insomnia in Digital Wonderland" (Angles: French Perspectives on the Anglophone World journal), "The Volatile and the Chimeric: A Hermeneutic of Inter-authenticity" (in Interpreting Authenticity. Translations and Its Others, edited collection, Peter Lang). He has co-authored one book on men's violences and co-edited three volumes on American Studies. His own book Masculinities and Desire. A Deleuzian Encounter will be published by Routledge and released in January 2019.